

Dr Sonalika Sinha is an Economist (Manager, Research) in the G20 Division of the International Department at Reserve Bank of India. She is an applied economist with a primary focus on impact assessment of policies aimed at the economy at an aggregate level, as well as those aimed at banks, non-banks, and firms. Her recent work is focused on impact of COVID-19 on the Indian economy and transmission of macroprudential policies to banks and firms. She has experience in policy research on a wide range of topics including open economy macroeconomics, and analyzing policy priorities of emerging market economies.